

RUST NEVER SLEEPS

THESE VINTAGE WRISTWATCHES PROVE GENUINE STYLE

NEVER BURNS OUT OR FADES AWAY.

1

AUDEMARS PIGUET

ROYAL OAK OFFSHORE END OF DAYS
[25770SN.O.0001KE.01]

Arnold Schwarzenegger helped design this limited edition (500 pieces) to wear in his 1999 film, End of Days. Much like the Governor, the watch is big and tough. Not only is the funky strap made of Kevlar, but the 42mm case is nearly impossible to scratch, thanks to its black PVD coating.

$35,000

armstrongrockwell.com

2

ROLEX

GMT-MASTER II
[116748]

This piece (circa 2000) is a survivor, collector slang for a vintage watch that looks factory fresh. It's in pristine condition, especially the yellow-gold Oyster-style bracelet, which has never been repolished. Rolex stopped adding blingy bezels to its sports watches years ago, which only boosts the desirability of this sapphire-and-diamond model.

$60,000

TickingAwayllc.com

4

HEUER

AUTAVIA "SIFFERT"
[73363]

Named for the beloved Swiss Formula One driver Jo Siffert, this racing chronograph (circa 1975) boasts a "panda" color scheme that's exceptionally legible and well suited to timing laps at the track. While most Sifferts from this era have automatic movements, this brushed-steel version is wound manually, making it a rare find.

$8,500

analogshift.com

1 2
3 4

3

PATEK PHILIPPE

CALATRAVA
[2526]

The enamel dial's creamy complexion and minimalist design pairs beautifully with the original Gay Frères bracelet for a timeless look that instantly elevates your horological game. But it's more than just a pretty face.

Made around 1957, this version of the legendary Ref. 2526 was also Patek's first automatic-winding wristwatch.

PRICE UPON REQUEST

govbergwatches.com

